

2021 WINTER & SPRING GMAT TUTORING

ACADEMIC BACKGROUND

Catelyn is a current senior at Brown studying Applied Mathematics-Economics. She has maintained a 4.0 GPA throughout college and received a score of 770 (top ~0.2%) on her first attempt at the GMAT.

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Catelyn has tutored since high school. At Brown, she tutors Economics and French.

CURRICULUM

The GMAT is an adaptive exam, one that changes as the test-taker progresses. The better the individual performs, the harder the exam becomes. Each section of the exam has its unique challenges. Success depends not only on being able to recognize question types and apply question-specific strategies, but also on being able to identify difficult subjects within the material covered by the exam. As such, the actual curriculum will be a specific and tailored plan, developed after a brief diagnostic period, and will remain flexible to continuous evolution as required. Below is a sample list of possible topics that could be covered.

- I. Verbal
  - a. Reading Comprehension
  - b. Grammar
  - c. Logical arguments and fallacies
- II. Quantitative
  - a. Algebra
  - b. Geometry
  - c. Number theory
  - d. Probability
- III. Integrated reasoning
  - a. Analysis and summary

COST

$200/hour, 40% discount per student if they wish to take the course with a friend.

CLASS PHILOSOPHY

The GMAT is a difficult exam, but it is not an impossible one. It requires careful attention and strategy, which can be mastered through thoughtful and deliberate practice. Catelyn's goal is to fully understand and meet students' needs, thus equipping them with the necessary tools and confidence to succeed on the exam.
